

II. Description of departmental mission and role within the College

Westmont College is an undergraduate, residential, Christian, liberal arts community

Westmont's mission uniquely and as a complement to the important work of other

Moreover, one concern is the number of majors offered in languages as compared to Spanish for secondary education. State requirements make the civilization and an additional linguistics course a necessity. Interdisciplinary cooperation between Liberal Studies and ML would benefit students of both departments.

B. Classrooms and Offices

1. Offices

leadership of Dr. Mary Docter. Modern Languages contributed faculty's time and 17.3% of graduates in ML are ethnically diverse. Although in two notable exceptions, the percentage of ethnic minorities

Our survey lumped two skills together: oral and written communication. In the future, we will separate these two PLOs to as cycle. We will contact other departments to consider what distinct features to address in our rubric 1.57g expenditures are part of this deficit. In particular, the instructional part of this deficit is

